

Barry Ferguson

My name is Barry Ferguson. I am originally from Hampton Roads Virginia but now reside in Plymouth, NC. I have been an artist since I was thirteen years old. Growing up my favorite artists were Monet, Leonardo da Vinci, and Jackson Pollock. I learned to draw by free hand copying pictures in magazines. When I got older, I began experimenting with different media. I discovered that I liked abstracts and realism. Later when I was in college I became interested in fine art. I started taking classes in drawing and design and my work began to take on an impressionist quality. Eventually I began to push the limits of impressionism and my style morphed into an abstract quality. Today my work falls between abstract and impressionism. I use a variety of media to get the qualities I want. My favorite subjects are people, animals, and landscapes. While living in Williamsburg, VA, I was a member of the Contemporary Art Center from 2016 to 2017 where my art was displayed in their gallery during many of their rotating exhibits. In 2017, one of my paintings, "The Crucified", was selected for entry in one of their juried art shows. Thank you for appreciating my art.
