

Dana Munn

I was born into a family of artistic, creative people. My mother and sister both painted and my father did carvings. For as long as I can remember, I have always been intrigued by color, texture and form.

In my work as a cosmetologist for over 30 years, I have dealt with these elements every day. I had never drawn or painted until I was 50 years old. I had an epiphany and became obsessed with the need to create. An image will pop into my head and I am driven to create it on a canvas. I thank you for allowing me to share my passion with you.
