

Dora Pasour

Dora lives in Maury, NC. She is a wife, mother, grandmother and a newcomer to the world of watercolor. She is a former area Director of the American Cancer Society and former Executive Director of the Greene County Interfaith Volunteers. She retired from this life of non-profit in 2014 and began painting in 2015, beginning with watercolor classes, the only medium offered at the time, but which she enjoys. She has taken classes from Karla Jennings of Snow Hill, Ed McComber of New Bern, Judy Dye of and with Carol Mann of Washington. She is a member of the Kinston Community Council of Art and Greenville Brushstrokes. Dora enjoys painting seascapes, coastal landscapes, botanicals and still lifes while using bright colors.

As a member of St. James United Methodist Church, she has donated many of her paintings to various church projects including Spring Fling, Annual Women's Bazaar, and the Jamaican Mission Fund Raiser. She has displayed her work at aTavola Market Cafe and in the Greene County Museum's Art Exhibition. Family and friends receive many of her paintings.
