

REBECCA IVES

I have painted since I was a child and now I am inspired by the wealth of diversity in nature and our relationships to other living entities. My work is characterized by an exploration of styles and substance intending to invite the viewer to share in simple observations of these relationships.

I have worked as a graphic designer, a small business owner in retail music, and a picture framer. I am now painting full time with the intention of growing technically and imaginatively while creating art that acknowledges the value of our interaction with nature.

I studied painting and drawing at East Carolina University under notable artists Paul Hartley, Ray Elmore, Tran Gordley and Ed Reep.
